Voyage Through the Black Hole

A Continuation of Thomas' Knowledge

I primarily refer the reader to the following links: The Secret of the Black Hole and What Happens in a Black Hole? Below are some new, fresh pictures concerning the black hole inside the galaxy (2011-2012).

The pictures show a number of suns which in spiral formation orbit the black hole before starting their voyage into it.

I believe that this picture shows a living star starts accelerating inside the hole and the transformation of matter is visible as a white light.

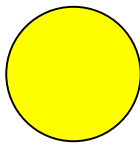

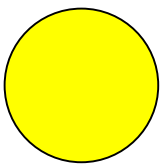

Andromeda Galaxy. Here we can see the black hole at the centre of the galaxy. It is, as we can see, not black, but white. Here we can see that the transformation of a living star into a white light has already started.

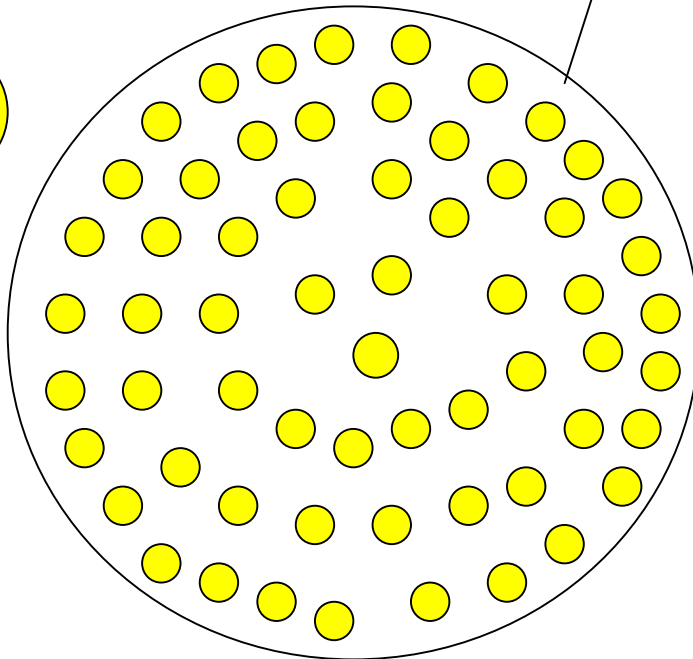

At the beginning of February, 2010, in my dream, I visited the black hole in our galaxy (The secret of the Black Hole, page 3). I was in a white light matter, similar to that above. Imagine being there, alone in an endless, huge white light, listening to voice telling you that you are in a black hole that is not really black, but white. How would you react? – I panicked.

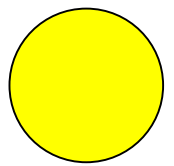

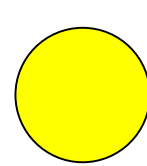

The pictures illustrate the road to the inner parts of the galaxy. As we can see, the living stars pass, one at the time, through the black hole and in to the centre of the galaxy. When they reach their goal there is another matter transformation to a determined level of frequency, shaped as a sphere. This means that its matter is built by an atom nucleus without neutrons and electrons. In other words: the new matter is built of innumerable nuclei which seem to have a negative charge. This matter is the foundation of the construct of the new, human world – In this world there is neither dark matter nor dark energy.

Each living star that passes through the black hole carries billions of people from the whole galaxy. These people do not notice much, since the whole transformation process is very slow, they think everything is at a standstill and that everything goes on forever. During the creation of the new world they keep their own star, i.e. they continue to live on their original star.

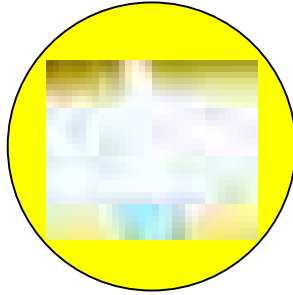

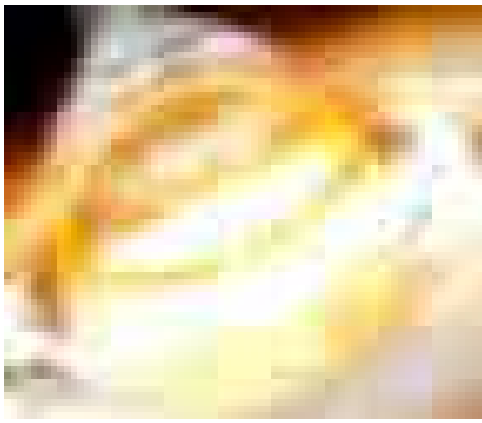

This is the new model of an atom which has no neutrons or electrons, i.e. no binary star system. Note that this is my own theory.

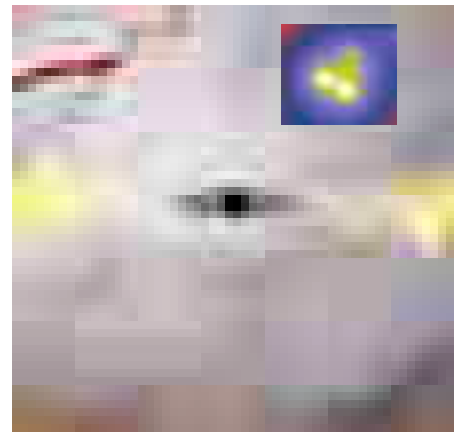

Eden, Paradise.

If you live on such a planet which has no planets, no moons, life seems to be eternal. There is no day or night, everything comes together. There are plants but no animals. You live in heavenly conditions, unknown to us. People live in nature and knowledge. Religion and God's phenomena are absent, they do not even exist in your dreams.

All celestial bodies are at the same level of frequency as are human. You see no suns, no heaven, everything comes together in a special light in harmony and balance, you live in it. You live in nature, in a human nature. The celestial bodies or stars renew themselves and matter lives and grows. The concept of death and illnesses do not exist in this world, at least not at the beginning. It is very difficult to describe the creation of a completely new human world. This world is totally unknown to this sick, dying planet, this cancer-like, inhuman world we live in.

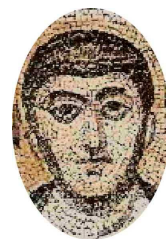

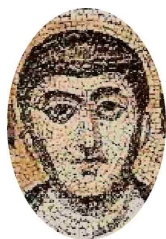

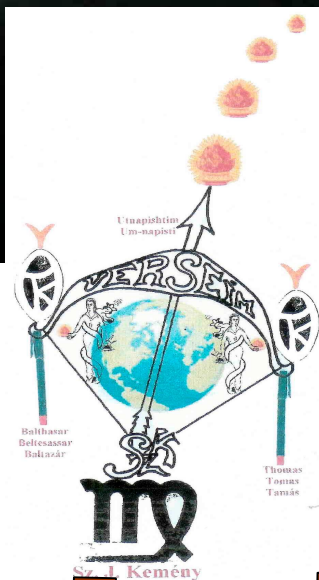

"The Kingdom of Deat" does not exist in that world. But there is one place, or a level, I can compare it to a waiting room. There we will find a number of animals in human guise, from all over our galaxy, who always served Man (the total, I heard, should be 144,000). These guards have a special assignment in our galaxy. Only they know who will end up there.

Mysterious Light Originates Near A Galaxy's Black Hole

The black hole inside the M87 galaxy is accelerating particles to very high speeds, releasing photons with a trillion times more energy than visible light.
